The Mega Millions prize that will be awarded on November 22 will pale in contrast to the Powerball jackpot that was up for grabs earlier this month and was worth $2 billion. However, if today’s winner is the fortunate one who matches all six numbers, they will be awarded the staggering sum of $132.1 million cash option.

Even when the chances aren't in your favour, there's an old saying that goes "if you don't play, you can't win."

The Mega Millions Game's Big Game

As of the 30th of January, 2020, the American multi-jurisdictional lottery game known as Mega Millions is available in 45 states, the District of Columbia, and the United States Virgin Islands. Prior to its inception in 1996, the game was initially referred to as The Big Game. Six years later, it was renamed temporarily to The Big Game Mega Millions. The inaugural drawing for Mega Millions, known as "The Big Game," took place in 2002; for more information, read below. The game that is now known as Mega Millions was first made available to players in six different states. After the name The Big Game was retired, the logo for all versions of the game featured a ball in a gold colour with six stars to represent the game's initial membership, although some lotteries inserted their own logo into the ball.

The jackpot is often presented as a nominal amount of yearly instalments when it is promoted, reflecting a prevalent practice among lotteries in the United States. If a jackpot winner goes for the cash value option (which is the more common option), they will be paid an amount that is roughly equivalent to the value of the instalments right now. The previous configuration of Mega Millions started on October 19, 2013, and the game's first drawing took place three days later. Matching 5 of 70 white balls and the gold-coloured "MegaBall" from the second field of 25 numbers are required for players in the current edition of Mega Millions (5/70 / 1/25).

The Mega Millions jackpot that was won was $1.537 billion for the drawing that took place on October 23, 2018, and the winning ticket was purchased in South Carolina. This was the greatest jackpot in the history of the game, and it was the only time that the jackpot was won.

In March of 2019, the winner did not reveal themselves and received their award.

The drawing for Mega Millions takes place every Tuesday and Friday night at eleven o'clock Eastern Time, except on holidays. The draws for the Mega Millions lottery are conducted in the studios of WSB-TV in Atlanta, Georgia, and are overseen by the Georgia Lottery. Mega Millions is handled by a consortium consisting of its original 12 lotteries. John Crow, Carol Blackmon, and Adrian Wolford are going to be your hosts today.
